Review: Booklet was written in 1950 following a survey mission to the North-east Region. A Soviet advisor accompanied the mission and his interview with labor-union chiefs is included. Some of the answers to the questions are derived from discussions with the Soviet adviser; consequently, the author warns that these explanations or answers must be adapted to the particular condition and situation of each union. Questions and answers cover seven categories: primary organization work, problem of cadres, relationship between labor union and management, production work, wages and incentives, training, and livelihood and welfare problems.

Appendix includes questions and answers on labor insurance, health and safety measures, wage standards, and Soviet factory incentive fund.
